Nemours duPont Pediatrics, Kinder Clinic is a medical home — a place where children with complex diseases can receive the primary pediatric care they need in an accessible, comfortable, informed environment. Our primary focus is on treating the Amish and Mennonite communities of Delaware.

Nemours duPont Pediatrics, Kinder Clinic will provide outpatient care for medically complex or special children. Lab tests and imaging will be available at this location, if needed.

Inpatient treatment primarily is provided at Nemours/Alfred I. duPont Hospital for Children where our Kinder Clinic physicians attend inpatient treatment.

Meet Our Diagnostic Referral Providers at this location:

Michael D. Fox, MD

Dr. Fox is an invited presenter, active researcher, medical journal author and reviewer, and holds certifications in pediatric advanced life support and neonatal resuscitation. He's also a member of multiple medical societies. "I really enjoy working with children.

They just seem to have a lightness about them, even when they're sick — and they often heal and get better very quickly. I enjoy working with their families, too — that's a truly important part of their care, because family members really have to understand and be on board with their children's care once they leave the hospital."

Matt Demczko, MD

Dr. Demczko is a board-certified pediatrician, physician scientist, medical educator and has presented on the topic of complex pediatric care throughout the region. "Caring for a patient over the course of their entire childhood is a privilege unlike any other. Having the opportunity to watch them grow and mature into healthy young men and women, while walking alongside their parents and family members for the journey is the reason I come to work each and every day."

"We love coming to the Kinder Clinic in Dover. We get the same great care at this location, without having to worry about traveling to Wilmington."
